An introduction to Staffordshire Community Learning

Whether you are looking to learn something new, update your skills, re-train to help land that dream job or to start your own business, or you simply wish to learn something fun for your own personal wellbeing, then Staffordshire Community Learning is here for you.

What is community learning?

Today's Staffordshire Community Learning Service is different to what you may think. For us, learning isn't just about wellbeing and bringing residents together.

It's about formal and informal learning programmes for adults aged 19 plus across the county to take that first step, building confidence and skills to progress in the world of work and support parents and families to give their children the best start in life.

We're about breaking down the barriers that many people face to formal learning; building confidence, interpersonal skills and discovering their potential. By offering a range of stimulating short courses, many free of charge, we are a key part of:

- improving health and wellbeing
- increasing independence and self-confidence
- accessing better jobs addressing inequalities
- and helping people to raise their aspirations for a better future.

What courses are available?

Our courses are perfect for anyone in Staffordshire aged 19 or above that wants to learn new skills or update existing ones, improve their employment prospects, get better at digital skills or improve their personal wellbeing.

Courses run in community venues or online. Most courses remain fully-funded and free, run by the very best local learning providers in Staffordshire

Check our Community Learning Service directory to see courses currently available at staffordshirecommunitylearning.org.uk/courses

Multiply

Maths is everywhere; but getting better at managing your bills, budgeting, improving your potential at work or helping the kids with the homework doesn't mean you need to go back to school or college.

Our FREE - everyday maths courses can help.

Feeling confident with numbers can help in every aspect of life from measuring building materials or following recipes, checking bank statements, or even setting up in business.

With the cost of living going up and up, now might be just the time to get on with numbers.

So, if you're one of the 49% of adults that are underconfident when it comes to anything about maths, you'll be able to get the support you need in the way you need it from the Multiply programme.

From flexible online courses to one-to-one mentoring, learn how you want, when you want.

Multiply has launched as part of the government's UK Shared Prosperity Fund (UKSPF) programme, by the Department for Education (DfE).

Our courses cover:

- Employability
- Leisure, Health and Wellbeing
- Digital Skills
- Family Learning
- Science, Technology, Engineering and Maths (STEM)
- English for speakers of other languages (ESOL)
- Courses for people with additional needs
- Everyday maths
